WALTER HAGEN MAY King May Compete NOT DEFEND TITLE

Date for "Met" Open Golf Leaves Americans Visiting England Little Leeway.

By KERR N. PETRIE.

By selecting the second week of July for its opening championship the Metropolitan Golf Association has left so very little of a margin between that event and the British open that there is just a possibility that Walter Hagen will not defend his title, and that neither the American professionals such as Jin Barnes, Jack Hutchinson and Tom Mc Namara, who are going over to Eng-land, or the British experts who are coming here, will be seen in action in that particular tournament. Possibly the M. G. A. has not acted without first giving consideration to the date of the British open at Deal, but as it has been announced that that event will be gin on June 28 this would make it necessary for the Americans and British ex perts to start this way the end of that week at the very latest if they are to take part in the "met" play. If on the other band they should decide to stay over into the following week it will be next to impossible for them to arrive here in time to compete for the honors which are now held by Hagen.

June 28 will fall on a Monday, so by Saturday of that week Var-don, Ray, Duncan and Mitchell should be aboard their steamship, bag and baggage, ready for the voyage and all with-out having had to hustle unduly. That arrangement would allow them one full week to make the trans-Atlantic crossing and then a few tlays besides to regain their land legs and familiarize themselves with the course over which the Metropolitan championship is to be
